

OCEAN FRONTIER 2018

NORTH ATLANTIC OPPORTUNITIES CONFERENCE

St. John's, NL | Oct. 9-12, 2018

www.oceanfrontierinstitute.com/oceanfrontier2018

There's only one ocean

The ocean has long impacted our life and how we live it. It has shaped our culture and our heritage. The ocean will impact our collective future.

Learning about the ocean helps us understand our connections to the sea. It also identifies what's required to develop our ocean resources responsibly while we take steps to protect marine ecosystems, reduce human impacts and combat climate change.

An ocean of opportunity

The global ocean economy is projected to double in size over the next 15 years. During Ocean Frontier 2018, world experts will provide insight on the innovative and sustainable management practices required to ensure we all benefit from this ocean of opportunity.

Ocean Frontier 2018 will highlight how research will generate opportunity for the North Atlantic:

- improve prediction and mitigation of major storms
- help manage human activities as they relate to ocean resources
- improve the potential for fisheries and aquaculture industries to meet global seafood demand in a sustainable manner

- strengthen marine safety
- transform how we monitor the ocean with new data capture and IT tools.

When and where

Tuesday, Oct. 9, 2018 through Friday, Oct. 12, 2018
St. John's, Newfoundland and Labrador, Canada

Who will attend

We expect approximately 200-250 people to attend the conference, representing various ocean-related fields — science and research, fisheries and aquaculture, government and non government organizations, academic and industry leaders. Mainstream and social media coverage will be heavily promoted.
